Jim McCall - Paul, ID

Jim McCall is the president of McCall Farms, Inc. in Paul, Idaho, where he has farmed for over 50 years. A third-generation farmer working alongside his son and brother, Jim grows sugar beets, malt barley for seed and malt, alfalfa, carrots for seed, canola for seed, wheat seed, and other rotational crops. McCall Farms also serves as a sales representative for Hilleshög beet seed.

Jim and his wife, Laurie, have been married for 47 years and have four children and seven grandchildren. A lifelong supporter of cooperative values, Jim's family has been involved with the co-op since the 1930s. He has served on numerous boards, including Valley Wide Cooperative, Idaho Cooperative Council, Northwest Ag Cooperative Council, and Valley Ag. Jim holds an Associate of Agricultural Science degree from the College of Southern Idaho and has received multiple grower awards as well as a service award from the Northwest Cooperative Council.
